

Restoration: Annual Invasive Grass Control

by Dr. Roger Sheley, USDA Agricultural Research Service

Dr. Sheley will conduct his presentation according to the following guideline. Webinar participants may use this guide to take notes throughout the presentation.

Implementing EBIPM: A Guide to Developing an Invasive Plant Operational Plan

This document is an outline for developing weed management plans and will be the basis for Dr. Sheley's presentation. In this guide, managers will follow the steps to developing a prevention plan, a weed control plan, and revegetation plan.

Supplementary Materials

Prioritizing Invasive Plant Management Strategies

R. L. Sheley and B. S. Smith. 2012. Rangelands 34(6): 11–14.

This article describes a method to prioritize management efforts to make optimum use of time and resources.

Establishing a Weed Prevention Area: A Step-By-Step User's Guide

S. Christensen, C. Ransom, R. Sheley, B. Smith, and R. Whitesides. 2011. EBIPM: Burns, OR.

Weed prevention areas can mobilize communities to focus on keeping weed free lands protected from invasive weeds. This guide provides details on developing working partnerships for a weed prevention area program.

Revegetation Guidelines for the Great Basin: Considering Invasive Weeds

R. Sheley, J. Mangold, K. Goodwin, and J. Marks. 2008. ARS-168. Washington, DC: US Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Research Service.

This guideline provides a step-by-step process for developing successful rangeland restoration.

Linking Ecological Principles to Tools and Strategies in an EBIPM Program

J. M. DiTomaso and B. S. Smith. 2009. Rangelands 34(6): 30–34.

This article reviews how to integrate herbicides and grazing into rangeland invasive plant management programs.

Grazing Invasive Annual Grasses: The Green and Brown Guide

B. Smith, R. Sheley, and T. Svejcar. 2012. EBIPM: Burns, OR.

This guide includes a detailed program for including grazing as part of an ecologically-based invasive plant management program.

Adaptive Management for Invasive Annual Grasses

R. Sheley, B. Smith, K. Reeve-Morgan, and T. Svejcar. 2009. EBIPM: Burns, OR.

This guideline offers details for monitoring for success, including data collection.
